

Indicators used to measure openness of an economy

Economy

It was our second time this term, when we were invited to a lecture. At first, students were supposed to show us their presentations, the subject of which they had to choose from the list created by the lecturer. Then the lecture started. Professor Żukrowska talked about economy, its features and indicators used to measure its openness. It was very informative and eye-opening.